Make Your Neighborhood Coyote-Unfriendly

Removing food sources and “hazing” among key actions to discourage coyotes from frequenting residential areas

While coyotes are instinctively afraid of humans, their fear can diminish if they become used to seeing people without experiencing negative consequences. And if coyotes find an easy food source – such as dog food left outside or unsecured trash – they will keep returning for this easily accessible food.

However, simple actions can discourage coyotes from becoming comfortable in your neighborhood and can teach them where they are not welcome.

Remove Food Sources

To discourage coyotes' presence, cut off their access to things such as pet food, garbage and small prey.

- Feed pets indoors or promptly remove dishes after pets eat outside.
- Store pet food indoors.
- Clear brush and dense weeds from around property to deprive rodents of shelter and reduce protective cover for coyotes.
- Use trash barrels equipped with tight clamping devices on the lids.
- Do not feed or provide water for wildlife. This attracts increased numbers of rodents, birds, snakes and other creatures that provide major portions of the coyote's natural diet.

The City reminds you that feeding coyotes is a violation of City Code. In May 2010, the City passed an ordinance prohibiting the feeding of coyotes, feral cats and dogs, raccoons, skunks and opossum.

Scare Away Coyotes

Equally important is teaching coyotes where they are not welcome. “Hazing,” which involves scaring off coyotes through actions that make them uncomfortable, teaches coyotes that your yard is an undesirable place for them to be, and they must leave.

If you encounter a coyote, you can use hazing techniques such as making eye contact and yelling at the coyote, waving your arms to make yourself appear as large as possible, using a noisemaker/whistle, throwing objects toward the coyote, stomping and clapping, running toward the coyote, spraying a hose at the coyote, and acting threatening.

Hazing does not include the use of weapons or any method that could physically harm coyotes.

Be persistent and keep hazing until the coyote leaves. Coyotes are intelligent animals that will quickly learn to avoid these places where they feel uncomfortable.

Wildlife experts do not recommend hazing if a coyote is injured, sick or has become cornered; in these situations, coyotes may act unexpectedly.

Watch Your Pets

While pets do not comprise a large portion of a coyote's diet, it is important to watch your pets, even in a fenced yard. Coyotes are opportunistic and can go after easy prey, such as an unattended pet.

Report Coyote Activities

The City adopted a policy guiding its response to the presence of coyotes that spells out specific actions that should be taken by the City if certain issues are occurring. These actions depend upon receiving accurate information about coyote activities from observations in the community.

The City encourages you to report coyote activity through this online report form to help the City determine when actions need to be taken. However, please note that if a coyote is acting in a threatening manner toward a human, you should first call 9-1-1, and an officer will respond. If you do not have internet access but would like to report a coyote incident, you can call the Police Department at 630-260-2161.

For more information, see the Coyote Information section of the City's website.

Panel Discussion on Coyotes

Aurora University will lead an educational panel discussion on living conflict-free with coyotes from 7-9 p.m. Nov. 7, 2013 at the Hickory Knolls Discovery Center in St. Charles. Panelists will include a veterinarian, a wildlife biologist, a dog trainer and a member of the Urban Coyote research project.

Cell Phone Law Changes Coming Soon

Ban on using hand-held devices while driving starts Jan. 1

It is not too early for motorists to start thinking, planning and getting into the habit of complying with a Jan. 1, 2014 law that bans the use of hand-held devices while driving.

Drivers will still be able to use hands-free technology with hand-held devices.

The potential fine for violating the law the first time will be $75 and as much as $150 for subsequent violations. Three moving violations within a 12-month period can result in a driver's Illinois license being suspended.

Drivers are also reminded that a 2010 Illinois law prohibits cell phone or hand-held device use in any school zone or construction zone.

Reminder on Rules for Solicitors

'No Soliciting' sign available online, at City Hall, Police Department

Residents who want to prohibit solicitors, canvassers and peddlers from their private property should post a "No Soliciting" sign near the main entrance to their home or business. The sign's text must be at least one-third inch in height. The City has "No Soliciting" signs available for purchase at City Hall and the Wheaton Police Department for $1 each. Or, you can print a sign from the City's website by going
